

Fair News Day 7, Friday, June 14, 2019

Large Animal Master Showmanship

This event is the grand finale of the livestock competitions and is a difficult challenge of showmanship skills across species. Exhibitors who won senior showmanship for goats, lambs, pigs, horses, and steer advance to this event, where they show all five species in one competition. The participants do not use their own animals, and are even asked to switch animals during the event. Today's event featured fair animals for all species except horses; instead, they used the miniature horses from Barnyard Babies.

It has been a while since SCEH had any participants, but this year we had two! Samantha Campbell won 2nd place and Peyton Steitz won 4th place. They did an amazing job drawing on their showmanship skills to deal with fractious goats, jumpy lambs, unruly pigs, and even miniature horses and steer which we do not have at our farm. Yay, Samantha and Peyton!

Congratulations to all the participants!

Samantha and Peyton ready to show

Auction

Tomorrow is the Youth Livestock Auction!

Auction begins at 10 am in the order Goats, Rabbits, Sheep, Beef, Swine.

Our club will work from 8-9am to set up the luncheon.

Please come on down to the Auction! Just watch, or register as a buyer (starting at 8:30 am) and get a free entrance ticket, bid on livestock, and enjoy a complimentary buyer lunch. Most importantly, you'll be supporting the kids.

Literary Works

Club members won awards for their writing. Stop by the table in the Youth Exhibit area and read their work for yourself.

Noah Schembri won Best of Show for his short story, "Mental Wake-Up Call."

Gabby Lou won 1st place for her story, "Myth."

Samantha Campbell won 1st place for her essay, "Abusive Relationships."

Sewn Accessories and Other Articles

Emma Mulders won 1st place for her woven bag.

Samantha Campbell won 1st place for her Sensory Apron.

Tomorrow at Fair

10 am Youth Livestock Auction

1 pm Storytelling Workshop

7:30 Concert: 98 degrees

Photo of the Day

Quincy, Wyatt, and Kian setting up for Auction